Water Supply Cleared In Spread Of Infection

Carmel's water supply, in spite of the taste attributed to low water conditions, pipe cleaning operations and the presence of algae in the water, is not responsible for the spread of a stomach ailment reported to be common in Carmel at the present time.

Dr. Dwight M. Bissell, of the Monterey county health department, yesterday emphasized that the ailment, a form of diarrhoea, is apparently spread from person to person; and also that Carmel water has been checked within the past two or three weeks and proved to be innocent of causing any such upsets.

The same ailment, caused by a virus upon which medical researchers are training their guns, is somewhat like influenza in the insidious manner in which it is spread, and is common at this time throughout the county and state, with many cases reported in epidemic in places as far apart as Imperial Valley and the Shasta dam site, Dr. Bissell said.

The disease was described by Dr. Bissell as annoying but not fatal except possibly in the case of very small children, and is passed only from person to person and not by means of food or water.

A State sanitary engineer recently checked the local water supply, which comes from San Clemente dam at the head of Carmel Valley, and "found everything to be perfect", according to Dr. Bissell. Further checks are being made at the present time, however, in local cases reported to Earle Duclus, county health inspector with offices at Monterey city hall.

Several cases have been reported from Sunset school.

Regarding other diseases reported from this area, Dr. Bissell said that recent cases of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) were from Pacific Grove and Monterey, with one mild case some time ago in Carmel Valley, but none from Carmel.

One case of undulant fever had been reported from Carmel, the health officer said, but was traced to consumption of raw cow's milk. "Anyone who drinks unpasteurized milk places himself in jeopardy because of the prevalence of undulant fever throughout the state", Dr. Bissell warned.

ROSES REALLY TO BLOOM AROUND SANITARY PLANT

Planting of roses and Boston ivy and seeding of a lawn to enhance the scenery at the new sewage disposal plant on the Carmel river "island" has been looked into by Francis E. Lester of the Lester Rose Gardens, at the request of Bernard Rowntree, assessor and assistant secretary to the Carmel sanitary board.

Nov. 7 Polls Listed For District

The polling places in Carmel for the special election on Tuesday, Nov. 7, are the Masonic Hall on Lincoln street near Seventh for the consolidated precinct No. 1, and the Charles A. Watson home at Fourth and San Carlos for consolidated precinct No. 2.

Carmel consolidated precinct No. 1 includes the usual Carmel precincts 1, 2 and 5, all territory west of San Carlos street, and Carmel consolidated No. 2 includes Carmel precincts 3 and 4, or all Carmel city territory east of San Carlos.

Other polling places in nearby areas are at the Old Forest Hill clubhouse in Pebble Beach and Crespi Hall for Point Lobos precinct.

Van Riper's Streamlined Six-Man Baseball Looms

Carmel owes a lot of good things to Charles K. Van Riper, whether it's the Abalone League, which has flourished for years during rapidly changing times for Carmel, or a high school for Carmel, for which Van Riper was the spearhead in the campaign for secession more than a year ago.

Although Van Riper doesn't think the Abalone League, one of the great original outdoor softball leagues, and one of the most colorful, will be revived so late in the present season, he has something to offer in the way of a ball game and it's something streamlined after the Van Riper heart.

The latest ball game is six-man baseball, which may soon get a test to see if old-time Abalone Leaguers can hit it off. The game was originated by Stephen Epler, the same man who started fast six-man fotball, which has proved so successful across the country.

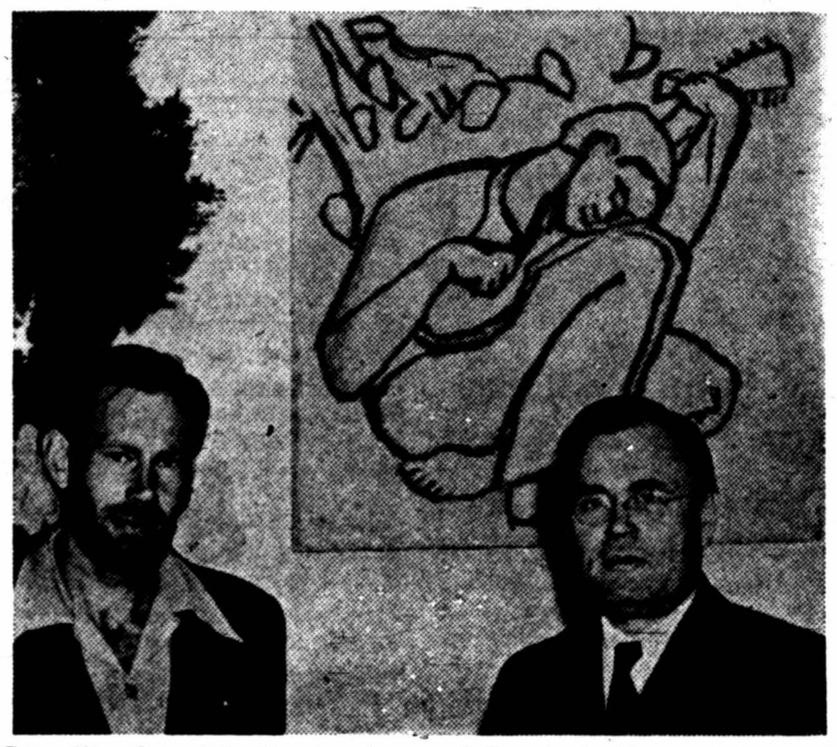
In six-man baseball, the field is laid out with a triangle instead of a diamond, each side being equal and the angle between the baselines 60 degrees, instead of 90 degrees, making it harder to get good hits. In order to reduce the number of fouls, however, each foul counts a half-strike against the batter.

To make the game more interesting, and give the players a better chance, each player in the field rotates in the six posiitons. There is a pitcher, catcher, first and second basemen and two fields, and the rotating of posiitons is from pitcher to catcher, to first base, to right field, to left field, to second base, to pitcher again.

Van Riper has suggestions for modifying the game for local consumption, retaining the three strikes and four fouls instead of the two strikes and three fouls in Epler's rules; and, instead of rotating positions after each batter is up, rotate once for each inning.

It may be just a coincidence that "Doc" Staniford was around at the drugstore greeting friends at the old stand again this week, and that Van Riper is talking up ball games, and then it may not. It still is true, however, that a lot of old Abalone League fans and players would like to see these two veterans of a dozen Abalone League campaigns out there facing each other across the diamond, or, in this case, the triangle.

GORDON NEWELL'S ART AT OCCIDENTAL



Carmelites figured in the recent presentation to Occidental College of the bas-relief of a lute player by Gordon Newell (left), accepted by Dr. Remsen D. Bird, Occidental president. Newell lives in the house he buit with his own hands and the help of friends a few miles south of Big Sur, while Dr. Bird resides in Carmel part of the year. Newell is former sculptor supervisor for the Southern California Art Project.

Personnel Of Red Cross Roll Call Awaits Start

The first meeting of the Carmel Red Cross Roll Call organization was held on Monday at headquarters, when the advance subscription committee accepted their assignment of prospects and promised a report by the time the campaign opens on Nov. 11. The committee members were confident that the people of the Carmel area would respond wholeheartedly to this year's appeal covering the largest budget in the history of the chapter and amounting to $5500.

Mrs. Sidney A. Trevvett, Roll Call chairman for the 1940 campaign, stated that her committee chairmen had received splendid response from those invited to participate as members of the organization and that there was every indication that the campaign would prove successful, as in the past.

Initial pledges will be sought in amounts averaging 20 per cent over previous years. This becomes necessary owing to an enlarged relief program with a national demand for war service production.

Mrs. Trevvett has announced the completion of the personnel of the Roll Call organization. Workers will be assigned their respective districts at a preliminary meeting to be held at the Trevvett home on Nov. 8.

The Roll Call organization of the Carmel Red Cross chapter follows: General chairman, Mrs. Sidney A. Trevvett; director, C. W. Lee; advance subscription committee, Jas. L. Cockburn, chairman, Herman S. Crossman, Mrs. R. R. Wallace, Whitney Palache, Gustave Laumeister, Colonel T. B. Taylor, Mrs. S. A. Trevvett, Mrs. Alfred Mathews, Mrs. Herbert John Morse, Miss Clara G. Hinds, William N. Dekker, and Miss Caroline Pickit; business district, E. H. Ewig, chairman, Fred McIndoe, Earl Graft, A. C. Lafrenz, Harold Nielsen, Harry Hilbert; Sunset school, Mrs. Lilly Trowbridge, chairman; district organization, Mrs William N. Dekker, chairman.

Campaign workers are:

Mrs. James Ainsworth, Mrs. Ernest Aldrich, Miss Helen C. Anderson, Mrs. Dean Arnold, Mrs. Alice Askew, Miss Rowena Beans, Mrs. Frank M. Bell, Mrs. Tom Brown, Mrs. Thomas Bunn, Miss Jane urritt, Mrs. Carl urroughs, Mrs. Virginia Carr, Mrs. Kent Clark, Mrs. Hugh Comstock, Miss abs Curtin, Mrs. L. L. Dewar, Mrs. John W. Dog Poisoner Walks! Two Cases Reported in Carmel This Week

Two cases of dog poisoning were reported to Carmel police this week as activities of a dog poisoner spread to this side of Carmel hill. Cases had previously been reported in Monterey. Neither dog died, although the poison was identified by veterinarians as arsenic.

Frederick R. Bechdolt, former police commissioner, who lives on Viscaino, reported his dog sick, as did Jack Schwartz on Carpenter near Second. Both said their dogs never strayed from their yards.

CITY TAX BILLS MAILED

City taxes will be due Nov. 6 and delinquent Dec. 25. Tax Collector Thomas J. Hefling started mailing tax bills this week for the fiscal year Jan. 1-Dec. 31, 1939. County tax bills have already gone out.

Police Dept. Wheels Give No Squeak!

Acting Chief Robert Walton took office as head of the Carmel police force on the night of Wednesday, Oct. 18, and promptly went to work reorganizing his department from within and, while setting wheels turning along a new road, these same wheels haven't been heard to utter a single, solitary squeak!

Any recommendations on police department policy Walton is keeping for the council, which may ask for a statement when it meets next on Wednesday, Nov. 8. Meanwhile, he is going about his survey of the situation in a quiet and efficient manner.

First official announcement from Acting Chief Walton is one regarding Hallowe'en, always a busy time for police—even in Carmel, which is supposed to be "different".

Walton urges everyone to "have a good time" as the occasion demands, but to "avoid property damage and endangering others." He also announced that over Hallowe'en those wishing to report vandalism may call for prompt radio car service by calling Carmel 376, if the usual Carmel 131 is busy.

"Our primary responsibility is to see that everyone enjoys Hallowe'en but not at other persons' expense", Walton stated. He smiled, however, as he said it, so he obviously means that this is a holiday for the youngsters, but one to be observed without infringing on personal property rights without spoiling some other person's Hallowe'en.

Walton, who came here Jan. 1 of this year, was introduced to the Carmel public at that time as a graduate of the San Jose State police school of which William A. Wiltberger is chief. He will be 30 years of age next month, and was born at Palouse, near Spokane, Wash.

At 14 he came to California, completed his high school education at San Mateo Union high school while living in Burlingame. He went to San Jose State for two years, then joined the U. S. Marines and saw special service in Nicaragua. On returning to this country, he was for a while attached to the U. S. Army and then entered Wiltberger's famed police school.

Walton is married and Mrs. Walton is a trained nurse, formerly on the staff of the Santa Clara county hospital in charge of children's activities.

Under Acting Chief Walton are the three members of the police department, Roy Fraties, Earle Wermuth and Les Overhulse.

Carmel Police Find Stolen Salinas Car Within Three Hours

Officer Earle Wermuth spotted a stolen car within three hours of the time it was reported missing from Salinas over police radio hookup, setting some sort of a record for efficiency early in the administration of Acting Chief Robert C. Walton.

The car, belonging to Mrs. F. A. McCollum, Salinas, was reported stolen at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday. At 11 p. m. Wermuth found it parked near Forest Lodge. The fact that out-of-town cars are frequently parked there made his detection more noteworthy.

Scouts Prepare For Snow Camp As Winter Feature

Scouts of Carmel Troops No. 39 and 86 have a big objective ahead of them, the annual snow camp for which the dates of Jan. 29-31 have been set this year.

Scoutmaster Hap Hastie reports about twice as many as the six representing Troop No. 39 last year will probably be eligible for this year's winter camp.

Scout Master P. A. McCreery, whose charges of the Carmel Legion Troop No. 86 are at present occupied with a number of patrol projects, will have a strong and representative group in the 125 Scouts to be eligible in the Monterey Bay area for the Yosemite camp outing.

Boy Scouts and their leaders from Monterey, San Benito and Santa Cruz counties will join in the winter snow camp for which requirements are that the Scouts attending be of first class rank, hold satisfactory records for at least one year's continuous registered service in scouting, and active during the past year.

An adult leader will accompany each eight Scouts. Skiing, skating and other winter sports will be enjoyed during the camp period.

Aside from planning for this event, Scout Master McCreery's Scouts are busily engaged in patrol, troop and individual projects. The Swallow Patrol of Troop 86 is learning first aid and making a stretcher, as part of their merit badge course. The Flying Eagle patrol is learning the Morse code and signal sending and receiving. The Hawk patrol is building camping equipment such as pack racks and duffle bags. The Indian Patrol is studying Indian lore and making replicas of tomahawks, drums and peace pipes, using only raw materials.

Troop 86's project, decided upon by troop leaders, is the building of a green willow fence along the north side of the Scout House property on Mission street at Eighth, entirely of natural materials and without nails.

Individual study is being devoted to natural history collections, radio building, etc.

Girl Scouts Plan Tea Next Friday at Headquarters

Major event of the early winter season for Carmel's Girl Scouts will be tea planned for the Girl Scout house next Friday afternoon from 4:00 to 6:00.

Girl Scouts, who are now learning cookie baking under the direction of Mrs. K. A. Moller, are getting ready to prepare the cookies for the occasion and spent one afternoon this week baking with success at the home of Mrs. Peter Elliott.

Mrs. George de Lorimier and Miss Audrey Walton will pour tea for which a 25-cent charge will be made to go to the troop funds for handcrafts and homemaking projects.

Also on the Girl Scout schedule is the nation-wide program for Sunday when Girl Scouts in uniform will atend their respective churches.

DEED: Louise T. Green, et al to Mary G. Steers. Aug. 12. Desc. same as above Deed.

Behrman Comedy Next Offering by McGaw, Knox

"No Time for Comedy", in spite of its title a comedy, will be the next dramatic presentation of the series by Emma Knox and Baldwin McGaw for the Filmarte Theater next Tuesday evening at 8:30.

The play was written by S. N. Behrman as a starring vehicle for Katherine Cornell and is witty comedy throughout. Seen many times by Carmel audiences in play readings, this will be the first reading the McGaws will do here this winter.

Mr. and Mrs. McGaw appeared at the Filmarte recently in the first dramatic presentation of their current series of three performances, but this was in costume. In "No Time for Comedy", they will appear in evening dress and take all the parts in their effective, able way.

Said Brooks Atkinson in the New York Times of the play: "The crackle of literary and theatrical wit makes 'No Time for Comedy' an ironic title."

Christian Science

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, Oct. 29, on the subject "Everlasting Punishment."

The Golden Text will be: "Cast away from you all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel?" (Ezekiel 18: 31). Bible selections will include the following passages from Proverbs 15 24, 29: "The way of life is above to the wise, that he may depart from hell beneath . . . The Lord is far from the wicked: but he heareth the prayer of the righteous."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Scripture and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "Sin will receive its full penalty, both for what it is and for what it does. Justice marks the sinner, and teaches mortals not to remove the waymarks of God. To envy's own hell, justice consigns the lie which, to advance itself, breaks God's commandments". (p. 542).

Community Church

Dr. Wilber W. McKee's sermon for the congregation of the Carmel Community Church, meeting at the Carmel Girl Scout House during rebuilding of the church, will be on the subject of "Loyal to the Royal That Is in You."

The Church school meets at 9:45 a. m. Minister's Bible class at 10 a. m. Sermon at 11.

Woman's Club Sets General Meeting for Monday, Nov. 6th

The next general monthly meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club will be on Monday, Nov. 6, at 2:30 o'clock at Pine Inn. The speaker will be Miss Dorothy Liebes, director of the Decorative Arts at the San Francisco Exposition.

Section meetings next week start with that of the Book section, which will meet on Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock at Pine Inn. Miss Edith Griffin will review several of the new books.

The Garden section will meet on Thursday at 10:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. S. Nye, Dolores and Eleventh streets. A talk on gardens will be given.

Mrs. Rendtorff Appraises Hitler And His Program

The speech which Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi foreign minister, made on Tuesday was summarized for the Current Events section of the Carmel Woman's Club on Wednesday morning by Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff. Following this, Mrs. Rendtorff outlined Hitler's plans in attempting to build a great German nation through acquisition of territory to the east, his plans for Poland and concluded with a brief picture of the Fuehrer's childhood and youth, which, due to his sensitive reaction to personal experiences, had a profound effect on his later philosophy and visions for Germany.

"Imagine a man with all Hitler's power . . . all the adulation he receives . . . and then imagine that he could remain sane!" This was Mrs. Rendtorff's closing remark.

Von Ribbentrop stressed three points in his speech, Mrs. Rendtorff said; first, that England pushed Poland into the war; second, that there is no reason why the Russo-German pact should not stand forever if the two countries disregard each others ideologies; and, third, France and Germany do not want war, but England does.

Great Britain has been preparing for this conflict for five or six years and was just waiting for an opportunity. Hitler has made every effort for friendship but has always been repulsed, she quoted von Ribbentrop as saying. He has delivered his last peace proposal, according to von Ribbentrop. It embodies five main points: a naval agreement of three-to-one between England and Germany; an eternal guarantee of the borders of Belgium, the Netherlands and France; German respect for British imperial interests; British respect for German interests in eastern Europe, and, lastly, a British-German pact to protect the British Empire, if necessary, but not for Britain to protect the proposed German empire.

In remarking on the last statement, Mrs. Rendtorff pointed out that Hitler does not want Britain to help him in his European conquests as she might then demand her share of the territory gained. The Fuehrer claims, she said, that he does not want to lose any of the territory he may acquire as his dream is to set up an integrated German Empire in Europe composed of German-born citizens. This is to be done by acquiring territory to the east of Germany, preferably with little population. Non-Germans will be expelled from these regions. He does not want to conquer races, but merely land, according to statements in "Mein Kampf", she said.

France does not interest him as it is too thickly populated with a people definitely not of German origin, Mrs. Rendtorff said. For the same reason he would disregard Belgium and Holland. Austria, predominantly German, he has already annexed. Czecho-slovakia is in his hands, and, although the Sudetan area was German in sympathy, he has made a mistake in acquiring the Czechs and Slovaks themselves, although not in acquiring their land, she explained. The people are a liability as he has no place to send them.

Danzig and the corridor Hitler did want as having German citizens. The rest of the country he is willing to turn over to Russia, establish a very small Poland for the Poles expelled from the part of Poland he wishes to retain. Within this latter state he would establish a state for the 3,000,000 Jews now in Poland, said Mrs. Rendtorff. The division of Poland planned by Hitler is the same as that which existed after the conquest of Frederick the Great, according to Mrs. Rendtorff.

German Poland will be populated by Germans and that is why the Fuehrer has invited the original German settlers in Lithuania, Latvia and Esthonia to settle in the country. However, they are unwilling to make the change although in a quandary as to whether Russia will take over these countries. If she did the German settlers would have to choose between the different ideologies. This is the problem they have to settle for themselves, she said.

In speaking of Hitler and his sensitive reaction to personal experiences, Mrs. Rendtorff said that she believed he had been horrified on his arrival in Warsaw to see what his army had done. For this reason, she feels that he is really desirous of peace as well as for the wish expressed in "Mein Kampf" for territory in Eastern Europe on which to establish the German empire. In her picture of the early life of the Fuehrer, she ably showed how the impressions Hitler had received at various stages of his life influenced his later views and decisions. As a result of this, he is a man who jumps at conclusions, forms his philosophy from these impressions and then acts. He is convinced of two things, his feeling for "race" and his confidence in his own form of leadership. These conclusions Mrs. Rendtorff has drawn from careful perusal of his book "Mein Kampf" in the original German.

Daniel E. Besecker, 80 Years Old, Dies In His Carmel Home

A resident of Carmel for two years, Daniel E. Besecker died at his home here on Sunday, Oct. 14, at the age of 80 years. Before coming here, his home had been in Oakland. He was in the real estate business in San Francisco for 50 years after coming west from Hagerstown, Md.

He is survived his wife, Mrs. Barbara Besecker, and an only daughter, Mrs. Elsie Gosling of Carmel.

Douglas School Notes

A low-goal polo tournament at Berkeley was participated in recently by a Douglas School team captained by Mary Barthelmess. Players taking part were Patricia Grant, Jackie Lankershim, Che Moody, and Roxana Dabney. They were entertained at a barbecue given to the players after the tournament. Following the games the team enjoyed watching the Del Monte versus San Mateo game at San Mateo.

An innovation in the Douglas high school curriculum is the addition of a weekly seminar to be held in front of the fire at Mrs. Grace Douglas' home each Wednesday night. Every possible aid to preparedness for college life is being offered to the student body.

Miss Mary Grinstead, president of the Douglas student body, and Sheila Moore, secretary, conducted an old-fashioned spelling bee at the last assembly. A faculty team competed against a senior team. The faculty was given a list of words prepared by the seniors, and made up of words which the seniors culled diligently from the dictionary. The faculty spelt the seniors down.

BALLET CARAVAN OPENING EVENT OF WINTER SEASON

The American Ballet Caravan, which comes to Carmel on Wednesday, Nov. 22, under the auspices of the Carmel Music Society as the opening program of the winter series, is now engaged on its second successful transcontinental tour. The enthusiasm which has followed it from coast to coast insures its popularity wherever it appears, and bookings show that the company is performing in 50 cities from Oct. 16 to Dec. 15.

All of the dancers in Ballet Caravan were born in the United States and the majority of them were trained in the American tradition of the dance. The Ballet Caravan stands in direct opposiiton to the European ballet and gives a fresh and original interpretation of American subjects.

The new "City Portrait" with choreography by Eugene Loring, and the same dancer's "Billy the Kid", a saga of the West, are delightful performances on indigenous American themes.

Dance programs have always been among the most popular of the Music Society's events and with the Ballet Caravan, the Society hopes to present something more unique and refreshing than ever. From all over the country come reports of the success of this troupe and of the contribution it is making to American dancing.

The other concerts of the Carmel Music Society's winter series are the San Francisco Trio, violin, 'cello and piano, with Lawrence Strauss, on Saturday, Jan. 13; Robert Virovai, sensational young violinist on Feb. 24, and Myra Hess, distinguished pianist on April 6.

Mrs. Paul Flanders is in charge of tickets for the Carmel Music Society's series.

"A Doll's House" Goes Well In Rehearsals Under Chick McCarthy

"A Doll's House", Ibsen play which Charles "Chick" McCarthy is directing for production at the First Theater, Monterey, is being whipped into good shape with an excellent cast for the second week-end in November.

Noel Sullivan, Connie Bell, Willa May McIntosh, Gordon Knoles—all members of the well presented "Moor Born" last spring—Del Page, Marion Howes, Jessie Joan Brown, petite Carol Joyce Hildebrand and Eric Short form the cast.

The play will be staged Nov. 10-11-12, with repeat performances over Thanksgiving.

Nurses' Section Hears Talks on California Physicians Service

The California Physicians Service plan was the subject of discussion at the meeting on Monday of the special duty nurses section of the Monterey County Nurses Association at the Carmel home of Miss Jean Elliott.

A San Francisco speaker will be present at the next meeting, set for Monday, Nov. 27, when the subject will again be the Physicians Service, public health plan.

A dozen members were present at this week's meeting. Refreshments were served and a prize won by Mrs. Bud Barrah.

The November meeting will be at the home of Mrs. George Torres, 89 Via Buena Vista in the Walker tract in Monterey. A pot-luck supper will be served.

Record Concert Set for Friday, Nov. 3, at Lial's Studio

The monthly record concert at the studio of Lial's Music store, Alvarado street, Monterey, will be given again on Friday, Nov. 3, Miss Margaret Lial announced this week. These concerts are free to music lovers of the peninsula.

Featured next Friday will be Jascha Heifetz and the Boston symphony orchestra under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky, as well as amusing first releases and records made by famous artists and never released because of imperfections due to unintended interjections by the performer. These will be especially welcomed as informal revelations of artistic temperament.

Messages from Orient to be Heard Tuesday by Missionary Group

The Carmel Missionary Society will meet at All Saints Guild room next Tuesday at 2:30, when tea will be served by the ladies of the Carmel Community Church.

A message from Mayling Soong Chiang of China will be given by Mrs. D. E. Nixon, and from Michi Kowai, noted Japanese educator living in Japan, by Josephine Muira, who will be in costume.

Mrs. W. H. Perkins will represent Mrs. Flora Glagan of the Philippines, while Mrs. V. D. Graham will bring word from Tseng Pao-Swen of China.

There will be sewing and work for the Stokley missionary box at 10 a. m.

MISSION RANCH CLASSES ARE BEING ARRANGED

Donald McFadden, new manager at the Mission Ranch Club, announces that he is forming a class for women in muscle coordination and a class for instruction in badminton.

These classes will be arranged at the convenience of those interested and will be free to club members, but non-members may attend on payment of a small fee. It is proposed now to have one class in the mornings and another in the late afternoons for business women.

Finn Haakon Frolich, Friend of Jack London, Who Lived an Exciting Sailor-to-Sculptor Career

By FRANCIS L. LLOYD

Finn Frolich left the sea many years ago and has since become a sculptor well known in this country and abroad, but in those formative years he traveled far and saw much, and the impress of the sea is yet upon the man of three score and ten years. He is stocky, grizzled, wears a blue sailor's cap,—and speaks dynamically.

At nine years of age, Finn left his native Christiana (now Oslo), and sailed away from Norway in a windjammer. He was 18 when he jumped ship at Brooklyn, where he answered an advertisement and so became model and then fast friend and protege of Daniel Chester French, the sculptor who sent Frolich to France in 1895.

Together they attended the first Quatres Arts ball in Paris, at which the beautiful red-headed model, Sarah, who was the original of "The Bacchante", was stripped, and in the ensuing riot four gendarmes were killed by the celebrative artists.

Finn Haakon Frolich was on hand for the birth of Greenwich Village, but he left for the Northwest just before Mrs. Payne Whitney took up sculptoring and fashionable society invaded McDougall alley.

In Seattle Frolich led a revival of Norse hero-worship. He found his fellow Norwegians there disdainful of the memory of the Vikings, regarding them as uncultured barbarians. Frolich inspired them with a pride in the red-bearded men whose prowess in battle and expert seamanship made them one of the great peoples of their time.

Frolich, as sculpture director for the 1909 Seattle Exposition, struck up a bargain with the Norway Society. He was to do a huge bust of Edward Grieg, the composer, in exchange for a $5000 Viking ship, which the Norwegians were to build.

Presentation of the bust to the University of Washington required a public appearance by the sculptor, and a speech. Frolich took a trolley car out into the country to rehearse the speech. He started: "Ladies and gentlemen — " whereupon all the dogs in that part of the state of Washington answered his stentorian tones, so, feeling a little foolish, he took the trolley back to town.

The time for the speech approached and Frolich's heart sank. Some "stuff", he decided, would help his nerve, so he got a bottle of "stuff". It bolstered him quite a bit and he relates that the chairman had a difficult job of getting Frolich to end his first public speech, once it was under way.

The bust dedicated, Frolich was to be presented with the Viking ship. When the Norwegians got down to Lake Washington for the official presentation, however, Frolich had already got there and had sailed the ship away.

Frolich, a stocky man of dynamic nature, cheerful and ready to talk of old times, was a close friend of Jack London and in this is a link with the old Carmel of the years shortly after the San Francisco fire. On coming here, Frolich brought a life mask he made of Jack London two weeks before London's sudden death.

"I had a hunch that something was going to happen to Jack London" Frolich declares. "I had painted him often, but I wanted to do a mask, so we went down into the wine cellar at Glen Ellen and made it. A few days later, in Burlingame, I heard of his death."

The mask reveals the finely-chiseled features of the great writer, the modeled nose, sensitive mouth, manly chin, deepening lines about the mouth.

"Those eyes were of the clearest blue", Frolich remarked, looking down on the closed lids of the "Sailor on Horseback". Irving Stone, incidentally, had this mask with him during the writing of his biography of Jack London.

Frolich readily recalls many exciting incidents in his three score, ten. Questioned about his sea career, he describes how, at the tender age of 14, he became second mate of the smartly-painted bark Captain Peder Dal, a Norwegian vessel:

"Buenos Aires was down with a plague and people were dying like flies. Our crew was gone, so we had to shanghai Indians and niggers. With a belaying pin I made those fellows work. I was second mate because I was one of those left who had enough experience to run a ship. She was a brightly-painted ship and she carried a beautiful figurehead."

He told next how he came into contact with the world of art.

"I jumped ship while in Erie basin in Brooklyn. I saw an advertisement in the paper for a model and I answered it. I posed for Daniel French who was then working on a statue of Nathan Hale, the 'man without a country'. French later sent me to Paris.

"In Paris I attended the first Quatres Arts Ball with Fred McManus and his famous red-headed model, Sarah, who was the original for 'The Bacchante', and a friend named, like myself, Finn.—We were 'Big Finn' and 'Little Finn'.

"During the ball, Sarah was stripped by the artists and finally the gendarmes were called. Three or four came first and we threw them out. Then about 60 gendarmes came and we had a great battle. Four of them were killed and we ran the rest out of the place. Then came a terrible wait to see what was going to happen.

"Shortly after dawn, a parade of gentlemen in long coats and top hats came to us. They were the City Fathers, and they explained very tactfully and nicely that they didn't like what we had done but that they were unable to do anything about it. They said they couldn't put us in jail.

"They explained that the artists had made Paris famous and that they were unwilling to do anything to offend us. The sentence, they stated, would be that, from that time on, one day a year should be set aside for the artists to do anything they wanted to do—so long as they didn't kill any more gendarmes!"

Frolich recalls the party with some glee, emphasizing, by way of a moral, that artists should be more highly regarded for their publicity value, and pointing out that in Europe they have been thus held in such high regard.

About 1896 Frolich was present for the beginning of Greenwich Village. He made his studio in a Chinese laundry, soon cut a door through the way to a saloon where teamsters imbibed. Here gathered Kenneth Frazier of "End of the Trail" fame, French, Augustus St. Gaudens and Balfour Kerr. Kerr used to telephone the inventor of the telephone, Alexander Graham Bell, who was his uncle. Soon thereafter Mrs. Whitney came to learn sculpting. The rich engulfed the bohemians and Greenwich Village grew apace.

Frolich went to Paris a second time for the Exposition of 1900, and, besides being a director of the Seattle Exposition in 1909, he worked on the Palace of Fine Arts for the 1915 World's Fair in San Francisco.

Living in Hollywood for several years before coming to the peninsula, Frolich's single biggest job was the making of 100 statues in three months for the motion picture 'Night Life of the Gods". He now has completed a temporary home and studio for himself, a portable house in an auto camp, which, like a snail's shell, he can take wherever he feels like going.

"I hope to remain here permanently", Frolich declares. "I think Carmel should live up to its fame as an artists' colony and I am ready to do my part in helping to make it a place for artists to come to and to work together."

I got real value when I equipped my home for GAS HEAT

IN the new homes you have seen being built everywhere during the past year — nine out of ten are equipped for gas heating. Why? The answer is that gas heating equipment gives more real value, is less expensive to buy than other types of heating equipment which will do the same satisfactory heating job.

One year from now or ten years from now, the owners of these homes will be just as enthusiastic about gas heating as they are right now. Year after year nothing can give as much comfort, convenience and all 'round satisfaction. Why not investigate gas heating for your home? Take advantage of the exceptionally easy purchase terms now in effect for all types of gas heating equipment. You can afford gas heating. It costs no more than old-fashioned methods of heating.

A GOOD BEGINNING

This is the eighth day in office of Carmel's new chief of police. No miracles can be expected in such a short time, but the new chief shows all evidence of beginning his job in the right way.

For one thing, he's been collecting information quietly and patiently. Although he hasn't made any statements yet about his plans, he indicates that he's going to reach his own conclusions, based on his observations, and make his own recommendations.

We definitely believe that the new chief will make a success of his job if he continues to work along those lines. He must run his department without interference. It is perfectly all right for him to consult with local citizens on local problems and local wishes, but, in the long run, none of these citizens will share his responsibilities with him, so their advice and counsel should only be used for guidance.

Furthermore, as a man who is willing to stand by what he believes and will not take dictation from anyone, the new chief will get a much more sympathetic backing from the people of Carmel. If he tells anybody who goes beyond the limits of merely advising and attempts to give orders to "go jump in the lake", he'll be doing a good job. The people of this town want a man who will stick up for his rights and will see that such a man doesn't lose out just because he is independent.

POST OFFICE MATTERS

The Carmel Post Office toils on daily in the performance of routine business with two important decisions casting their shadows across the threshold.

These are decisions regarding the future Post Office building and the future Post Master.

Red tape has each in its clutches, as recommendations on the rival post office building propositions are on file with the Fourth Assistant Post Master General in Washington, D. C., who attends to matters of buildings, sites, equipment and supplies; and as appointment of a Post Master waits for Congress to meet in regular session in January.

Here is the Post Master situation: Three candidates are eligible, Fred Mylar, now assistant post master; Mrs. Irene Cator, post master; and Ernest Bixler, reported to have been recommended by U. S. Senator Sheridan Downey, with the results of the civil service examinations of a couple of months ago putting the candidates in that order. Mr. Mylar was first with veteran's preference, giving him an edge on Mrs. Cator, who led in the part of the examination relative to knowledge of post office operation.

On the other hand, there have been asserted complaints regarding the service at the local post office, which may stand against Mrs. Cator's appointment. Mr. Mylar is a registered Republican, which, if politics are an influence in this appointment—which now becomes a permanent one under civil service—is adverse to his possible nomination. Therefore, it would appear that Mr. Bixler, who has been a Carmel resident for some years, and in business here as a contractor, might have an edge.

It would, indeed, be unfortunate if Mrs. Cator were replaced in an office which she has served long and well at such an important time as this, when the job becomes one no longer dependent upon political whim, even though Argyll Campbell, her brother, as a Democratic leader in this State, without doubt was a great help in obtaining the original appointment for her. She has done her job well, regardless of the complaints, because any public office is fair target to those few mistakes which occur in such a multitude of routine operations.

As for the location of the new Post Office, there is little doubt but that the offer of M. J. Murphy, Inc., backed by the merchants and businessmen of Ocean avenue who strongly desire to have the Post Office remain in the same general area, has been highly recommended.

Murphy's offer consists of an L-shaped Post Office on Mission Street at Seventh—the alternative offer by Murphy of the Junipero-Ocean avenue corner being removed by the service station bid—while the only rival offer is that of Carl Burrows on the corner of Lincoln and Sixth opposite Hotel La Ribera.

While the Post Office department is probably most cognizant of the relative economy of one site over the other, it probably has also had Murphy's site recommended both by the Post Office inspector, who made a personal survey, and by Mrs. Cator.

Meanwhile, the present Post Office lease is up in January and there is no new building available. Under the present agreement with E. H. Ewig, owner of the building, and associates who pay, and under the Murphy offer would continue to pay, part of the rent, the lease can be extended from month to month to await the opening of the new Post Office.

So, Post Office matters are very much in status quo and will probably remain there for many weeks to come.

CINQUAIN!

Cinquain!
Your form is like
A rare old porcelain,
An urn to hold the ashes of My pain.

—WILMA BOTT.

TO A FACTORY GIRL'S HANDS

Patient hands, folded so still,
You have always to do the will
Of another, not your own.
How small they are; each small wrist-bone
Speaks to me through the pale skin.
Patient hands, patient and thin,
Where is your happy, hurrying blood?
What have you of hardihood
To contend with the quick wheel
With its whirring, dizzy zeal,
Keeping pace, pace, hour on hour,
Matching your languor to its whirling power,
To its ever-replenished might,—
Listless hands, frail and slight,
Now so heavy, so inertly lying,—
Hands that are eager, and complying,
Child-like and old, and strong and weak—
Is it the wheels that have made your grace so meek?

—HELEN HOYT.

THE CAUTIOUS HEART

I went down to the river bank,
But not until I knew
The leaves were gone from the rose-red tree
That I last saw with you;

Not until I knew the hills,
Lifting all around,
Had put off their crimson cloak
To the waiting ground;

Not until I knew the thrush,
Upon its migrant wing,
Had left the thickets that we loved
Void of rememb'ring.

But all in vain the cautious heart,
Pain takes us unaware—
I had forgot the waterfall
Upon its rocky stair!

From "Secret Bird" —JESSIE B. RITTENHOUSE.

HAUNTING PINES

Here in the city I am haunted still
By memories of pines upon a hill;
And when in some strange place I chance to meet
A few still growing by a crowded street,
That place becomes a shaded, hallowed spot;
A fervent prayer arises "Cut them not!"
They make a temple in an arid space;
Who walks beneath them feels and knows God's grace.

—JOSEPHINE KERN.

REASSURANCE

There is a definite small minority in Carmel—a very small minority indeed are those who have come out in the open—who still complain about the idea of a Carmel high school; and, at this stage, their only stand is one of faint-heartedness: They express the opinion from time to time that the high school may never be built.

On what do these swooning complainants base their claims? They say that the PWA application was turned down for lack of funds; that the WPA application stands little enough chance of going through; that the board has waited too long and the school cannot possibly be ready for next fall.

We have it, however, on the word of the trustees, which should be reassuring to all those who worked—even fought—for the Carmel high school, and continued the battle when selection of a suitable site was the issue, and have continued to support their, at times, beleaguered board because this board had their confidence—that work will begin about the first of the year and this will enable the Carmel high school to be open for classes when next fall comes around.

Foresight has been used in making the WPA application, which is now on file, so that, should the full amount sought, $94,000 of the $125,000 project, not be forthcoming, or the manpower not be available to carry out the full project, then the specifications can be narrowed down to the most essential items.

Chief items in the application include the pedestrian underpass, urgently demanded by those who considered the Hatton ranch site as undesirable without an underpass; grading of roads and playing field sites; manufacturing and laying of adobe veneer, which should give the buildings extra insulation against cold and heat, and provide a most attractive finish to the buildings which are essentially of the California type, and make the buildings more fire resistant; and laying of sewers and pipelines.

Very definitely, the Carmel high school is going ahead and, barring any unforseen events, it should be ready for classes now attending Monterey Union high school under the contract agreement.

We're glad the Carmel Business Association has taken over the job of staging a Hallowe'en Party for the youth of Carmel. This affair will not only be a joy for the youngsters, but save many a parental headache; and property owners and police should be especially thankful for the outlet for high spirits.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

"Our Phillip Nesbitt, who used to contribute his column "Of Men and Beasts" to The Pine Cone, is now doing sketches for San Francisco Life, New Yorker of the west coast, and living in San Francisco.

S. F. Life gives him a note as follows:

"Born in historic Boston and widely traveled (suddenly vanishing from one locality and as suddenly appearing in another seems a favorite stunt of his) Phillip Nesbitt gets pleasure out of meeting people with little more than an elbow-nudging and instantly striking up a likability on both ends. This naturally accrues to his artistic advantage. Seized with an idea, he grabs a piece of charcoal, pencil, crayon, pen, brush or whatever is immediately available and goes to work on scratch-paper, wrapping paper or what have you. The result is something uncannily accurate.

"On the more serious side, Nesbitt has achieved considerable recognition for his water colors, and has had a one-man exhibit in the famous Leicester Galleries of London.

"He has done murals at well known Chicago, New York, London and Paris places and, closer to home, at the popular Pebble Beach (Del Monte) lodge. Swanky bars and night clubs have found his decorative art just the right ingredient for getting their places talked about.

"One of San Francisco's morning dailies has just commissioned Nesbitt to do a series of full-page sketches satirizing the San Francisco scene."

Congratulations are due Phil and we'll be looking forward to his work!

Recently we published letters from Albert Leon Van Houtte, who wrote from Italy, and from Johnnie Nye, who was in China, not far from Tientsin. They both told of disasters and rumors of wars.

More peaceful is the tone of the letter from Gallatin and Lynn Powers, who on Aug. 15 were in the Cook Islands after more than a year's absence from Carmel, starting place on their projected three-year, round-the-world cruise in their 50-foot ketch Otter.

Skipper and Lynn have been having the time of their lives on the cruise which has taken them to Hawaii, the Marquesas, the Low Archipelago, the Society Islands, of which Tahiti is the gem (and Papeete the flaw), and have reached Rarotonga in the more westerly Cook Islands.

In part, Skipper and Lynn write as follows of Tahiti:

"Not until we had been in Tahiti for several days did we begin to feel the real atmosphere and charm of the island. Our first impressions of the town (Papeete) with its dingey streets and buildings remained, but now we feel that these same time-worn, well used buildings have acquired a mellowness and a character that seemed to improve with age like an old violin.

"It is the people even more than the scenery—and certainly not the town of Papeete—that makes Tahiti the colorful place that it is. The native customs are passing, but much of the afterglow of ancient Tahiti remains. A few minutes' ride from town and one can find the native living much as his ancestors lived for centuries. He still makes his own bamboo and coconut houses and prepares the same native foods. The reason that this type of life can be preserved at the very doorstep of European civilization is that the Tahitian is naturally neither ambitious nor progressive, and when he does work he earns the American equivalent of 40 to 60 cents a day for labor—hardly enough to assume a European standards of living. The Tahitian compromises by adopting European clothes, buying a few staple food products and some white man's liquor when he can afford it.

"Even in Papeete we saw quite a number of homeless natives. With their proverbial coconut mats, their bed is where they lie down, and from sundown to sunup, people can be seen lying on the sidewalks under overhanging balconies, their little bundle of belongings wrapped in a pareu cloth under their heads. If you don't have a job in Tahiti nobody worries about you. They are more likely to worry about you if you work too steadily. You find fruit for the picking and fish for the catching. Why take life too seriously?"

Tom Thienes, who has been absent from Carmel for many moons while pursuing the muse of the publicist in Southern California, writes of his most recent activities in connection with the Mission Play by John Steven McGroarty at Pasadena the end of last month.

He describes the set in which the facade of Carmel Mission was used depicting not the Carmel Mission of history but the resorted Mission, and, what is even more out of time-focus, the Mission was used for a scene pre-dating the Mission's building, according to Thienes, who knows about these things.

Thienes, during his stay in Carmel of several years, appeared in Forest Theater productions and publicized the Serra Pageant.

* * *

Liane de Gidro, Hungarian sculptress, who spent considerable time in Carmel this year, has just received a shipment of her work from Europe and has written friends in Carmel that the shipment, consisting mainly of her larger work, arrived in good condition.

Baroness de Gidro is now doing heads in New York, but plans soon to come west to Hollywood. During her stay in Carmel she did a head of Martin Flavin, Pulitzer Prize playwright of Carmel Highlands, which provoked considerable favorable comment.

Announced for publication is a collection of poems by Rance Oliver of Carmel under the title of "Life With a Smile" which will be off New York presses before long. Say the publishers: "In it breathes the veritable spirit of the old troubadours, that spirit which impels a man to take life with a smile and a song, and to exult in every fragment of the world's beauty."

* * *

A lutist these days is a rarity. Richard Dyer-Bennet of Berkeley is one, however, who is heard occasionally in Carmel. He was down three years ago and was heard at the home of Mrs. Jesse Lynch Williams on Carmel Point and this week he was again heard by an informal gathering at the Carmel Art Institute Studio.

Dyer-Bennet plays the syron, or Swedish lute, but his ballads are not confined to the Scandinavian, for his repertoire runs through the old folk songs, whether interpreted in the Schubert Lieder, or in the ballads of the West Virginia hills.

A real student of the lute, Dyer-Bennet has studied with the few remaining masters of the instrument and its lore in Europe and ranks now as one of this coast's leading ballad singers.

Slightly built and fair, Dyer-Bennet bears some physical resemblance to the German minnesingers of tradition.

THE
HAM and EGGS DICTATORS!

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THEM?

Nearly every intelligent voter, who reads before he votes, knows by this time that extravagant pension provisions of the Ham and Eggs scheme are just bait for the trap. The gold brick promise of 30-Every-Thursday is simply the come-on, designed to camouflage the fact that this Communist-backed program would give its promoters absolute power as DICTATORS OF CALIFORNIA!

WHAT ARE THE RECORDS OF THESE WOULD-BE DICTATORS?

HERE ARE THEIR RECORDS:

Willis Allen, director of the Ham and Eggs movement, was convicted in Federal Court in 1937 of misuse of the mails for fraudulent misrepresentation in a hair-tonic promotion scheme.

His brother, Lawrence Allen, co-director of Ham and Eggs, was on the front pages just a year ago on asserted forgery charges.

Do You Want "The Allen Boys" and Their Tribe as Dictators of California?

Nathan T. Porter, the Ham and Eggs "banking expert", was president of the defunct National Thrift Corporaion when it went bankrupt a few years ago, wiping out millions of dollars in savings of 30,000 small investors.

Do You Want Mr. Porter as Head of the Proposed Ham and Eggs Bank—Financed With Your Money and as Sole Custodian of Your Tax Funds?

Wake up, voters! California has been a good, clean place to live. Let's keep it that way. California wants no would-be Huey Longs. And California wants no part of the ruin and disaster that would follow enactment of the Ham and Eggs plan.

VOTE "NO" on No. 1

VOTE "NO" on HAM & EGGS DICTATORSHIP

No sooner had the marriage of Grayce Joyce anl John (Bucky) Geohagen become news on the Monterey peninsula than wedding bells were ringing for another member of Freddie Nagel's orchestra. This time the groom was Ronny Panton and the bride was Jean Hollingsworth of Carmel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Hollingsworth. They were married on Wednesday morning of last week in Salt Lake City where Nagel's orchestra has been playing since leaving Del Monte. Miss Hollingsworth left Carmel for San Francisco on Tuesday and the same afternoon boarded a plane for Salt Lake City. On hand to bid her "bon voyage" in San Francisco were the newly-married Geohagens and Ellis Anderson, who is arranger for Nagel's orchestra, and Mrs. Anderson. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Panton of Alameda. The couple will make their home in Salt Lake City until the end of the orchestra's engagement there.

On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Jean Herrick left Carmel, where they have been occupying a cottage on Carmelo street for the past two weeks, to return to their home in Los Angeles. Herrick is the Pacific coast editor of "Look" magazine and combined his holiday here with some work. He covered the Antoinette Lees (Andrea Leeds)-Robert Howard wedding in St. John's Chapel at Del Monte on Wednesday afternoon. Assisting him were two of the magazine's photographers, Earl Teisen and Steve Hansen.

Cary Grant, versatile actor, becomes the disillusioned, happiness-hunting husband of "In Name Only" at the Carmel Theater Sunday to Tuesday.

* * *

Honeymooning in Carmel last week were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lees of Los Angeles.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Barchfield of Madison, N. J., are spending some time here and have taken a house on Camino Real. They expect to stay until the middle of November.

* * *

Miss Maxine Harbolt and Miss Barbara Taylor of Carmel spent last week-end in San Francisco. Miss Harbolt visited the Fair and Miss Taylor attended the Santa Clara-St. Mary's football game.

* * *

Glenn R. Kershner of Los Angeles and Tahiti was the guest of the Costello family in a Peter Pan cottage in Carmel last Sunday. Kershner is the author of "Brown Barriers" which uses Monterey in 1856 as part of its locale. He intends to return to Carmel again in the near future.

* * *

The American Association of Advertising Agents is holding a conference at Del Monte Hotel. Two hundred members are attending the meetings which started yesterday and continue through today.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Cheek, who have been living in a house on Carmel Point for the past year, will spend the next six months in San Jose. They expect to return to Carmel at the end of this time and stay here permanently.

* * *

Augmenting the movie colony visitors on the peninsula this week have been Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Colman. They came here to be with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and are also guests at Del Monte Lodge. Mrs. Colman is known professionally as Bonita Hume.

* * *

Ted McConnell, of Cowichan, Vancouver Island, B. C., was a week-end guest at Hotel La Ribera. He is a color photography enthusiast and a friend of the Colden Whitmans.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Perrin have returned from San Francisco where they spent last week.

Dr. Howard Clark returned to Carmel on Thursday of last week after a stay of three weeks in Chicago where he attended sessions of the American Academy of Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat diseases. He flew east, which is a comparatively dangerous undertaking, picked up a new car in Flint, Mich., and drove it west, also a comparatively dangerous feat, not to mention a stay in that notoriously dangerous city, Chicago. All these undertakings he negotiated with no mishap and then while doing a little gardening which necessitated climbing on the roof of his home in Hatton Fields to prune a vine, fell off and injured his hip and as a result is now a paient in the Monterey hospital. Mrs. Clark maintains that when he returns to his home again she is going to watch him with an eagle eye as she is tired of being alone.

Samuel Hopkins of Carmel was one of the godparents at the recent christening of Joan, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Law of Fresno, frequent peninsula visitors. The ceremony was performed in the Atherton home of Mr. and Mrs. James Flood whose son was christened at the same time. Mrs. Law and Mrs. Flood are sisters and the babies were born within a few hours of each other. The Flood baby was named James Clair Flood, after his great-grandfather who made history during the Comstock era when Virginia City boomed as a gold mining town. Both babies wore lovely, old handmade christening robes of lingerie, nainsook, and real lace that have been handed down in their respective families for generations.

Conrad Imelman left Carmel last Friday for Bloomington, Ill., where he will meet Mrs. Imelman, who has been spending some time there visiting her parents. On his way east Mr. Imelman will take a trip through the Canadian Rockies.

* * *

Latest word from Mary Henderson, formerly of Carmel, is that she is in Brussels, Belgium, waiting for permission to enter France, where she will be a war correspondent for the Associated Press.

* * *

In San Francisco to attend the Friday evening performance of "Tristan and Isolde" last week were David Marrs, instructor in music at the Douglas schools, and Miss Kohlman and Jackie Lankershim.

* * *

James L. Cockburn and his son, Ranald Cockburn, arrived in Carmel on Sunday evening after a week spent in Lovelock, Nev., and on their ranch near Witter Springs in Lake county.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lockwood and their son, Billy, of San Luis Obispo, were guests of Mrs. F. W. Ten Winkel for four days last week. Mrs. Ten Winkel is Mrs. Lockwood's aunt.

* * *

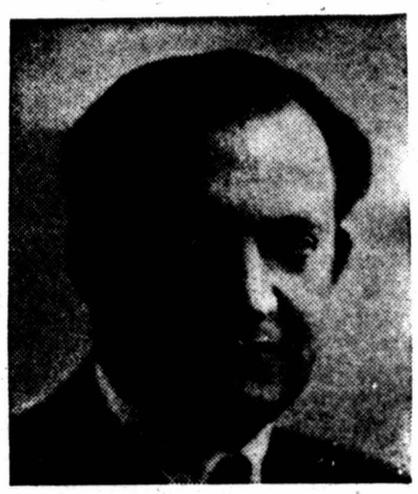
Miss Carmen Rubio is recovering at St. Mary's Hospital in San Francisco after an emergency appendix operation.

* * *

Mrs. C. Taylor of San Francisco has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Alfred Wolff, at her home on San Antonio street.

COUNTY HEALTH REPORT

Poliomyelitis was still present in the county with one more case reported to health authorities. There were ten new cases of syphilis, three each of gonorrhea, chickenpox and scarlet fever, one each of measles and lobar pneumonia.



George Koltanowski, Belgian world blindfold chess champion, to play at Legion Hall Nov. 7.

Guests of Mrs. McKim Hollins at her Pebble Beach home last week-end were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Barthelmess and Count and Countess Ilya Tolstoi, all of Beverly Hills. They arrived on Thursday and stayed until Monday when they left by car for the south. The Barthelmesses were on the peninsula to visit their daughter, Mary, who is a student at Douglas school.

Miss Patsy Chapman was the guest of honor at a luncheon party at Normandy Inn on Saturday on the occasion of her thirteenth birthday and her guests were fifteen of her fellow students at Douglas school. Assisting her in entertaining her friends were her mother, Mrs. Rogers, and her grandmother, Mrs. Irvin S. Cobb. Both Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Cobb had driven up from Southern California to be present on this occasion. There was a cake adorned with the correct number of candles which Patsy blew out after wishing in the correct manner.

Carmel 1473 or 2

Long ago minstrels traveled from town to town and told of the loves and hates and sorrows anl joys of the people they met or heard of on their journeys. On their arrival in a town, the people gathered around and listened to the tales they had to tell and the songs they had to sing. A modern minstrel is Richard Dyer-Bennet who sang to a score of friends Kit Whitman had invited to the Carmel Art Institute on Tuesday afternoon, when a cold, chill wind blew outside while storm clouds scudded across the sky and the dusk gathered. It was an ideal time to sit and listen to the emotional quality of his lute playing, coupled with the fine emotional modulations of his voice. He sang old ballads, English, French, German and American. Some were sad and haunting, some gay and humorous, and one was just plain "naughty." Dyer-Bennet's singing has improved greatly since his last appearance here two years ago. Besides a fine range of expression in his voice, he has developed his actions anl playing so that they add a quality of subtlety which he lacked before. His popularity is continually increasing and he leaves shortly on an eastern tour where he has numerous concert engagements. He is particularly at his best in a small, intimate recital and such it was on Tuesday afternoon. He told of the hundreds of old American folk songs he has collected and those present left feeling that an opportunity to hear them within the near future would be an occasion to anticipate with the greatest pleasure.

Antoinette Lees (Andrea Leeds, film actress) and Robert S. Howard of San Francisco were married on Wednesday afternoon at St. John's Chapel in Del Monte by the Reverend Theodore Bell. The bride wore a gown of ivory velvet and was attenled by Mrs. Reeves Estey as matron of honor, dressed in turquoise blue, and four bridesmaids, Miss Mary Toomey, Miss Lee Russell, Mrs. Richard Niblett, and Miss Antoinette Clark, all in gowns of dusty rose. Lindsay Howard, older brother of the groom, was best man and the ushers were William Seymour, Dr. William Sexton and Edward G. Haas. Following the wedding a reception was held in the Tower room of Del Monte hotel after which the bride and groom left by car for Los Angeles where they embark on the Lurline today for a honeymoon in Honolulu. Mrs. Howard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Lees of Texas and Mr. Howard is the son of Mrs. Edmond B. Herrscher and Charles S. Howard, San Francisco sportsman and owner of the famous horses, Seabiscuit and Kayak II. Both the parents of the bride and groom were present at the wedding.

* * *

A dash of Susie Ellen Duval, a few pinches of Bob Bratt, Dick Masten and Spud Gray stirred with a generous quantity of Betty Carr and you have fun. Add to that a sprinkling of Bert Spencer with his vaudeville acts and you have more fun. Combine it all with Don McFadden and his sister, Jeannette, as host and hostess, and you have last Sunday's supper part at the Mission Ranch Club. Susie played the piano and Dick, Bob, Betty and Spud sang songs from "Where There's a Will" to which the seventy-five persons present added their vocal talent and there are more of these times to come every Sunday night according to Don McFadden, the new manager of the Mission Ranch Club.

* * *

Recital by June Delight Dancers Proves Success

For the varied and balanced nature of the program, which included an interpretation of Hal Garrott's "Squiffer", and for the performance of her dancers, June Delight is to be complimented upon the success of her dance recital given at Sunset Auditorium on Saturday evening.

Two of the dancers were outstanding, Carol Canoles for her finished dancing, and Madelaine McDonogh for her natural grace, with Gloria Hellam a most promising third. That all three have professional possibilities cannot be denied.

"A Day in Class" was an interesting and informal way of introducing their talents to the audience, which left few seats vacant in Sunset auditorium, and they were later seen separately and in larger groups.

Most refreshing was the tiny tot group of youngsters, most of them small boys, who danced gleefully but at times doubtfully in a tap number. One small boy kept his hands in his pockets until the final gesture when he had to take his hand out to touch his toe.

A second boy wanted ever so badly to tuck his hands away but repeatedly controlled his hands. (We were there once ourselves!) A third completely forgot the routine, managed to trip over himself and others —and the result was delightful! They were doing very well for beginners up before their first footlights.

The "Carmel Ballet" provided an opportunity for most of the large group to show their ability in toe dancing, and "Squiffer", the next portion of the program, provided a unique pantomime.

In this version of Garrott's "Squiffer", Joys, represented by little girls in bright yellow, overcame Glooms, in black, and then Bears—again the tiny tots stole the show!—and Candy Canes, and finally the central characters performed their contrasting steps.

Carol Classic was a very demure Princess, for whose hand the Red Fairy Hot, Madelaine McDonogh, and Squiffer, Bobby Brown, the squirrel, danced. Squiffer, of course, won.

Always a welcome portion of June Delight's presentations are the Spanish dancers, whose lively steps and clicking castanets brightened this program.

The Hildebrand sisters, Carol Joyce and Laurel Dell, were delightful whenever they appeared, and Carol Canoles pleased with her hula as in her other solos. A spectacular event was Carol Ann Smith's jump rope dance.

June Delight, for her own thoroughly capable performance, again proved herself as a dancer as well as teacher.

The large company included Madelaine McDonogh, Carol Canoles, Gloria Hellam, Rose Funchess, Carol Ann Smith, Diane Lewis, Wanda Hastie, Harvya Hodges, Patsy Canoles, Jean Turner, Jean Getz, Marie Stanley, Denny Classic, Lee Selvey, John Fortier, Janet Hufford, Bobby Hufford, Wanda Warren, Edith Barbie, Marion Perkins, Louise Harbor, Carol Classic, Mary Agnes Fortier, Catherine Ann de la Roza, Dorothy Shoemaker, Bee Miller, oanne Christensen, Patty Foster, Carol Joyce Hildebrand, Laurel Dell Hildebrand, Sherlie Sousa, Bobby Brown, Max Hodges, Shelton Burwell, June Delight Canoles, Billy Pat Torras, Carmelita Fortier, Gwendolyn Reed, Carolyn Conway, Frances Koepp, Doris Lewis, Genevieve Kent, Ramona Relyea, Adrian Smeltzer, Helen Martin, Betty Segovia, Lily Perez, Pauline Hernandez and Barbara Timmins.

"In Name Only" Vivid Romance on Carmel Screen

The eternal triangle is analyzed, refurbished and re-assembled in a sparkling, stimulating guise in "In Name Only", screen play based on the best-seller, "Memory of Love", which comes to the Carmel Theater Sunday to Tuesday.

Cary Grant as the husband, Kay Francis as the wily wife, and Carole Lombard as the "other woman" head the cast, supported by Charles Coburn, Helen Vinson, Katharine Alexander, Jonathan Hale and Maurice Moscovich.

"Coast Guard" and "Charlie Chan at Treasure Island" are the double bill Friday and Saturday.

Lily Pons' San Jose Concert Scheduled for Friday, Nov. 3

The concert of Lily Pons, operatic star, sponsored by the Denny-Watrous management in San Jose, is set for next Friday evening in the civic auditorium.

Miss Pons sang before 14,000 last Saturday at the Fair and was accorded enthusiastic criticism by San Francisco newspapers.

Ardy Van Leeuwen, who played the flute in the Bach Festival, will play the obligato and Constantino Gallinicos will be at the piano.

Verdi's "Caro Nome", Handel, Liszt, Debussy, Faure, Hue, La Forge, and Dell' Acqua's Villanelle will be included in the well chosen program.

George Marion, Jr., Does Libretto for "Too Many Girls"

Those who read about "Too Many Girls" in "Life" magazine will be interested to know that this new Broadway musical comedy with music by Rogers anl Hart has for librettist George Marion, Jr., son of Carmel's George Marion.

This is the younger Marion's first stage play after a short and successful career as a scenario writer.

World Chess Champion to Play Blindfolded In Local Exhibition

The Carmel Chess Club is bringing George Koltanowski, Belgium's world blindfold chess champion, for an exhibition series at the Carmel Legion Hall at 8 o'clock on the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 7.

Opposing Koltanowski will be the best of players in the Monterey bay area.

Koltanowski established a blindfold record in Edinburgh in September when he played 34 games in 13½ hours and won 24 of these, drawing the remaining ten.

Paul Whitman Heads Carmel Chess Club, Succeeding Bathen

John Bathen, for two years president of the Carmel Chess Club, retired last week and was succeeded by Paul Whitman. Harold Crane was elected secretary, the only other office to be filled.

Membership of the Carmel Chess Club totals 30, active in matches with teams from other cities in the Monterey bay area.

DON BLANDING TO ADDRESS CARMEL AUDIENCE TONIGHT

Don Blanding, Carmel's distinguished author-illustrator, will be heard in a talk sponsored by the Sunset Parent-Teacher Association this evening at Sunset auditorium.

Blanding, whose latest book, "Drifter's Gold" is just off the presses, will speak informally and has announced his subject as "Drifter's Gold."

Always a popular talker, Blanding is returning from the first part of his Pacific Coast lecture tour for this Carmel appearance. He will draw on his wide experiences in Ameirca and Hawaii as an illustrator and "Vagabond" poet, founder of "Lei Day" in the Islands and Hawaii's unofficial poet laureate.

His appearance is being sponsored by the Sunset Parent-Teacher Association to raise funds for local welfare projects by means of which the Parent-Teacher Association carries on important work among the school children of Carmel.

Blanding's appearance will be a temporary "aloha" before leaving for Honolulu, Nov. 22, on the Clipper. There he will again stage a big musical revue for charity. After that he will return in the spring for another lecture tour across the country.

The talk is scheduled for 8:15.

"CARMEL DOLLARS" LINKED WITH HAM AND EGGS PLAN

It was for Dallas E. Wood, who writes the column entitled "The Prowler" for the Palo Alto Times, to be the first to draw attention in the public prints to the comparison between the "Carmel dollars" which made the rounds here a few years ago and came to rest in various places, including collectors' scrapbooks, and the warrants of the proposed Ham and Eggs plan.

Writes Wood under a Carmel dateline:—

Businessmen in this town are among those who have no enthusiasm for that Ham and Eggs pension scrip proposal. Carmel has had experience in stamp certificates.

In 1933 the business people here, desirous of doing their bit toward alleviating unemployment distress, consented to participate in a plan which worked as follows:

Dollar scrip was issued to be given to unemployed people for whom jobs were created in doing local public chores of sundry sorts; the merchants consented to accept the blank certificates whose ultimate redemption for one dollar depended upon their accumulation of $1.08 in stamps of 3-cent denomination; each merchant honoring the certificate affixed a 3-cent stamp onto the back, and passed the paper on to somebody else, who was expected to do likewise.

There was a difference between the conception of this Carmel certificate experiment and the Ham and Eggs scrip plan. The Carmel business people went into this avowedly as a charitable enterprise. Each handling of a dollar certificate involved a 3-cent contribution to the local unemployment relief system.

Ham and Eggers insist that their plan is a sound economic movement.

The Carmel scrip was kept in circulation deliberately for some time. But it ultimately wore out the patience of the contributors. The merchants who were most amiable about its acceptance were the ones privileged to receive the bulk of it; in other words they were penalized at the rate of three cents a deal for their kindness and public spirit. Because of the bother of trying to work the scrip off on some brother dealer, some of the store people would take theirs to the local bank along with cash and checks for deposits. The local banks, being a party to the charity scheme, would take the scrip, affix another stamp and distribute the paper among their employes so as to force it into circulation again.

But more and more, people began to refuse to honor the paper. Some merchants, getting a certificate lacking five or six stamps of its redemption total, would finish the job so as to retire the paper at once and thus insure themselves against all possibility of ever seeing it again.

Merchants accepting a piece of relief scrip in payment of a 10-cent purchase on which there was a penny profit, would hand over the article of purchase and 90 cents in change. The 3-cent stamp thus absorbed the penny profit and left the dealer with a net loss of two cents on the transaction.

Banks getting the certificate deposited recurrently found themselves getting stuck for the major portion of the $1.08 redemption total (the eight cents was for overhead costs). And their enthusiasm waned.

Ultimately everybody got to talking about those certificates as "damned nuisance"; stores began refusing to accept, and customers objected to presenting them.

The experiment died a natural death.

The Carmel scrip is not parallel to the Ham and Eggs plan. But the stamp features of the two are closely akin.

J. FRANK DEVENDORF

Founder

As Our Jo Sees It from Hatton Fields

Back yonder around a year ago, everybody was all worked up about the business of investigating the fracas down there on the Tennessee river.

And I been thinking about it, from seeing an old paper which I run across when I was kinda tidying up my desk, before my Susie comes in and does it, herself—and I would never know, thereafter, where to find anything.

Investigations are great medicine, if you can choose your own jury. A horse-thief could ask for nothing nicer—or surer.

But this TVA whitewash, it has quieted folks in some parts of the country—and has about blown over. But in Tennessee, the folks there are in a different boat—they are wondering about who is gonna dig up the mazuma to pay their schoolteachers, etc., since Uncle Samuel moved in. Sambo pays taxes to nobody—he just collects.

Glamor, the dictionary says, means something that is artificially glorified. Also it means ILLUSION. TVA was no slouch, in its day—on glamor.

Yours, with the low down,

JO SERRA.

Grand Hallowe'en Party Tuesday Night For Kids

Hallowe'en is less likely to be a headache to parents, property owners and police this year, thanks to the Carmel Business Association, which is sponsoring the big Hallowe'en Party Tuesday evening. A parade at 8 o'clock will start off the evening's festivities.

The Hallowe'en parade will form on Ocean avenue in front of Devendorf Plaza, and the costumes will be judged at the corner of San Carlos and Ocean avenue. Ocean avenue will be roped off during the party from Junipero to Dolores.

Judges were announced this week as Lloyd Weer, Chief Mogul, and Mrs. Wick Parsons and James Thoburn, as his assistants.

Police and firemen in uniform, will march in the parade, and all adults who'd like to join in the fun by clowning may also line up in the parade.

One adult (?), Milt Latham, has been getting out his clown suit and makeup and promises to be in the thick of things in the parade. "I love a parade," declares Milt.

June Delight's dancing pupils have also entered into the spirit of the occasion and will be on hand to dance as witches, black cats and spooks.

Master of ceremonies will be Capt. J. Shelburn Robison, president of the Carmel Business Association, which also sponsors the annual Christmas Tree party and carol singing.

Cash prizes are offered for various age-groups of children for costumes worn in the parade. Music and dancing will follow on Ocean avenue, with Gil Severns providing the music.

Women's Lives Endangered by Faulty Flue

Lives of Mrs. Howard Ricketson, living at Dolores and Tenth, and of her companion, Miss Margaret Radcliffe, who spent the night with her, were jeopardized early yesterday by fumes from a faulty heater flue.

Mrs. Ricketson was found lying unconscious on the floor by her friend who succeeded in attracting the attention of neighbors before succumbing. Both revived quickly on the arrival of the Red Cross ambulance crew.

Doris Crossman Pledged at U. S. C. to Delta Gamma

Miss Doris Crossman, of Carmel, was pledged recently to Delta Gamma sorority at the University of Southern California.

Pledging ceremonies climaxed a week of intensive formal rushing by the 15 sororities on the Trojan campus. Included were teas and dinners with colorful decorations, culminated by preference dinners on Friday and pledging Saturday.

The list of 208 neophytes to the Trojan Greek groups was announced by Dean Mary Sinclair Crawford, counselor of women.

Miss Crossman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Crossman.

Nov. 7 Ballot Is Discussed by Women's Group

The first five measures on the November 7 ballot were discussed before the Wednesday afternoon meeting of the Monterey County League of Women Voters in the San Carlos Hotel, Monterey. The legal aspects of the measure dealing with chiropractic were presented by Captain J. Shelburn Robison. Webster Street discussed the legal points of measures 3 and 4 dealing with loan sharks. The adverse points of the "oil", or fifth, measure were presented by Milus T. Gay.

E. J. Fitzharris of San Francisco was the speaker on the first, or life retirement, measure. His talk was under two headings, "Bait", and "Hook, Line and Sinker". The "bait", he said, is the pension offered in the form of warrants which the people interested have been intentionally misled to believe can be cashed within 30 days. The "Hook, Line and Sinker" is the state banking system which would be set up to handle these warrants. This system will become a credit clearing house for all government funds turned in.

The bill was defeated last time by a scant 10 per cent and so presents a vital issue to all voters on Nov. 7, Fitzharris declared.

A short business meeting preceded the discussions and tea was served following the meeting.

Ruth Dexter Burnett Gives Demonstration at Mission Ranch

A large group enjoyed the demonstration of ballroom dancing and exercises given by Mrs. Ruth Dexter Burnett at the Mission Ranch Club on Sunday evening.

Illustrating her talk with steps and exercises important to good dancing, Mrs. Burnett, the wife of Dr. Theodore Burnett, retired University of California professor, gave good account of her technique, teaching and charm.

A student with the country's outstanding teachers, Mrs. Burnett is qualified to instruct others. She comes to Carmel bearing credentials attesting to success in her art elsewhere, including New York City and Philadelphia.

DR. LLOYD MILLS PLACE, RETIRED DENTIST, DEAD

Death of Dr. Lloyd Mills Place, 59-year-old Carmel resident, followed a heart attack last Friday morning at his home on Mountain View near Torres.

Dr. Place, a retired dentist and former resident of Palo Alto, had lived here for three years. In good health last Thursday, he played golf in the afternoon.

Surviving is his mother, Mrs. C. E. Place of Carmel. He was born in Oswego, N. Y.

BOWLING ASSOCIATION FORMS NEW LEAGUES

The Monterey Peninsula Bowling Association, composed of bowlers active in the various fraternal, service club, industrial and city leagues, is now working on formation of an inter-city league with Carmel, Pacific Grove and Monterey teams. All Carmel bowlers are invited to participate in the league which has headquarters at the Monterey Bowl.

FORMER BILLEE YOUNG DEAD, FRIENDS LEARN

Carmel friends of Mrs. J. C. Hilton of Marysville will be grieved to hear of her death during the latter part of August. Mrs. Hilton, the former Miss Billee Young, was for many years a Carmel resident and her garden at Fourth and Mission streets will long be remembered as one of the loveliest in town. While here, she was employed by the Palace Drug Company in Monterey.

Art Institute Invites Public to Meet Noted Sculptor, Finn Frolich

Finn Haakon Frolich, Norwegian-born sculptor who has memorialized Edward Grieg and James Hill, the "Empire Builder", in the University of Washington collection, will be a guest of the Carmel Art Institute this afternoon at 2:30.

Kit Whitman is inviting the public to meet Frolich, who will model and chat informally during the afternoon.

European Situation Subject of Lecture by German Exile

"The European Drama" will be the subject of Miss Tony Sender's talk before the Monterey Adult Forum at Pacific Grove high school auditorium on Friday, Nov. 3, at 8 o'clock.

For 13 years, before her exile, she was a member of the German Reichstag and was one of the participants in the first International Anti-War Congress in Switzerland in 1915. She escaped from Germany in 1933.

LA COLLECTA CLUB TO MEET WEDNESDAY

The next meeting of La Collecta Club will be devoted to nature study, and will be held next Wednesday when Miss Beth Morgan will be the hostess. Mrs. Howard Timbers will speak on Mother Nature and Some of Her Children. Club members will also report on their observation of bird habits.

The meeting last week was at the home of Mrs. William Chappell. Mrs. Mildred Melrose was hostess to the 16 members and their two guests, Miss Adelaide Schirmer and Mrs. Clifford Jones.

Mrs. Vive Harber gave an interesting and enlightening talk on the history of hymnology, illustrated by Mrs. Clara Louise Beller who played a number of hymns and variations.

Mrs. Timbers' birthday was celebrated.
